

Señor Gray's Lingy Challenge #3

Lingy Challenges help stretch your mind and look at language a little differently. If you like puzzles, you might enjoy trying this out. This puzzle is kind of a code, and kind of a pattern, and a little bit of a perspective puzzle.

Strange Language Discovered!!

The Challenge:

This bizarre language, found in a cave* in Northern Babylonia*, dates from the 2nd millennium BC*. Can you crack the code and figure out what might come next....?

1. Share the puzzle, but keep the answer to yourself. You might win a prize, but not if you tell everyone.
2. If you think you've solved the puzzle, write your name and the answer on this paper and put it in the puzzle answers box in Mr. Gray's room. Be ready to explain how you arrived at the answer. Sometimes I'll check just to make sure you really understand how you got the answer.
3. Students who solved the challenge correctly will be announced over the morning announcements.
4. Some students with a correct answer will get to have a computer gaming lunch in Mr. Gray's room.

disclosure

*not actually found in a cave

*not exactly Northern Babylonia

*does not really date from the 2nd Millennium
