A Secret Language

Lingy Challenges help stretch your mind and think a little differently. If you like puzzles, you might enjoy trying this out. This week's puzzle is a secret language, used by students to send messages that no one else (especially teachers) can understand. George Washington used a code like this during the Revolutionary War.*
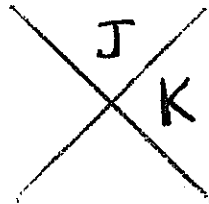

If you can decipher this code, maybe you can learn to write secret messages to your friends.
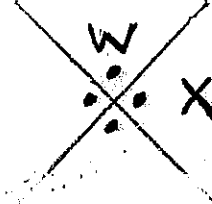

The Challenge:

Use the data below to create a key that will help to decipher the first secret message below. First, you'll need to complete the key yourself by inferring what's missing and completing the key correctly. Then, decode the message.

Complete the Key:

Message #1:

Decode the Message:

Find and Decode Message #2:

Your Name (in the secret language):